A True Animation Legacy

In 2010, the world watched in horror as the Deepwater Horizon disaster unfolded.

Beau Brown and Industrial3D helped bring clarity to the crisis. As global audiences struggled to understand what was happening a mile beneath the ocean's surface, traditional reporting fell short. Industrial3D partnered with CNN, Fox News, and other major outlets to visually explain the incident and proposed solutions with 3D animation.

Through technical 3D animation designed by Beau Brown's creative vision and industry expertise, complex ideas became clear. Creating a visual story and relatability to the public about the disaster that happened, and how to solve it. This moment not only educated the public but also solidified Industrial3D's position as a leader in technical media and proved the power of creative visualization in industrial communication.

FROM THE CEO

What we tell people is this: we've been doing 3D animation and digital visualization for a long time. Through those years, we've built a process that works.

At Industrial3D, our role is to visualize the unbuilt and turn complex ideas into clear, compelling stories. We specialize in bridging the gap between engineering and understanding, helping our clients communicate what others struggle to explain.

The biggest lift we provide isn't just animation or interactive media, it's confidence.

When clients come to us, they know they're going to get the outcome they are hoping for, at a fair price, without the stress or uncertainty that usually comes with highly technical visualization projects.

Our job goes far beyond creating visuals. Our responsibility is to guide our clients through the entire process, from concept to delivery, making the complex feel simple and the unknown feel predictable.

We don't expect our clients to understand 3D workflows, production pipelines, or technical limitations. That's our job. We explain what we're doing, why we're doing it, and what to expect every step of the way.

At the end of the day, our clients don't just want great visuals; they want clarity, control, and peace of mind.

Once you're working with us, you don't have to worry; we've got you covered.

BENEFITS OF 3D ANIMATION

Ever wonder why 3D animation is so effective?

It's because it doesn't just tell your story, it shows it in a way your audience can immediately understand.

By combining visual and auditory elements, 3D animation transforms complex products, systems, and processes into clear, engaging experiences. It allows viewers to see inside equipment, follow step-by-step processes, and visualize real-world scenarios that would otherwise be difficult, or even impossible, to explain without animation.

This level of clarity eliminates confusion and accelerates understanding. Instead of interpreting static images or technical descriptions, your audience can quickly grasp how something works, why it matters, and how it applies to them.

That translates directly into stronger marketing, more effective sales conversations, and improved training outcomes.

At Industrial3D, we develop animations that serve a wide range of purposes; from showcasing the internal workings of equipment and simulating medical or technical scenarios, to illustrating safety procedures, manufacturing workflows, and installation processes.

These animations are designed to perform across multiple touchpoints, including trade shows, sales presentations, training programs, marketing campaigns, and digital platforms, ensuring your message is consistent, clear, and impactful wherever it's seen.

At I3D, we have built animations for a variety of industries. To name a few, we have included a list on the next page.
